ARCHIVES
IN ZAGREB

The State Archives in Zagreb was founded in 1907 as the Zagreb City Archives under the administration of the “Brethren of the Croatian Dragon” Society.

Today, the State Archives in Zagreb is a public institution of particular importance to the Republic of Croatia that stores and maintains archival material created by administrative and public services, justice, educational, cultural, social and health institutions, business entities, banks, monetary institutions, parties, societies, foundations and organisations, as well as family and personal fonds and various collections ranging from the 13th to the 21st century.

The territorial spectrum of the Archives includes the City of Zagreb, the majority of Zagreb County and part of the Krapina-Zagorje County.

The Archives has archival material in its storage totalling 12,000 running meters categorised in 1,269 archival fonds and collections.

The Archives is housed in two locations – Opatička 29 and Avenija Dubrovnik 36.

The 3000 m² storage area at Avenija Dubrovnik 36 meets the latest European and global standards and represents a state-of-the-art storage area amongst the State Archives in the Republic of Croatia.

Archive storage

The Archives' New Reading Room was opened in 2005 and has 24 seats and is equipped with 4 microreaders and 2 computers.

On average, around 1,700 users visit the Archives every year and approximately 6000 requests are being processed which makes us the second most visited archive in Croatia, right after the central Croatian State Archives.
